Walmington-on-Sea is a fictional seaside resort that is the setting of Dad's Army, including the BBC Television sitcom, the BBC Radio 4 series and two feature films.

Walmington-on-Sea is on the south coast of England which, following the fall of France and the evacuation of the British Expeditionary Force from Dunkirk during the Second World War, found itself on the front line against Hitler. It is situated in Created by Jimmy Perry. With Arthur Lowe, John Le Mesurier, Clive Dunn, John Laurie. His Lordship's butler Perkins makes Captain Mainwaring lose a shooting bet by telling them to stop target practice while his master is asleep. Captain Mainwaring agrees with the platoon's bitter rival warden Hodges that their contribution to the war effort needs more local respect.

We have a separate page devoted to Walmington-on-Sea. Legacy. Dad's Army came to an end after 9 series and 80 programmes in 1977 with the episode Never Too Old – although when it was shot no decision had been made to stop filming, it was clear that this was a real possibility and Perry and Croft took the unusual step of having the cast break the fourth wall to address the viewers directly in raising a closing toast 'to Britain's Home Guard'. Before the series had ended there had ...

Dad's Army (1968-1977), British sitcom about the Home Guard in World War II by Jimmy Perry and David Croft. The show focuses on the Walmington-On-Sea platoon of the Home Guard, commanded by pompous bank manager Captain Mainwaring, assisted by his mild-mannered chief clerk, Sergeant Wilson. Other members of the platoon include: Lance Corporal Jones, an old soldier; Private Frazer, a Scotsman and former Naval CPO; Private Godfrey, the elderly medical orderly; Private Pike, the youngest member ...
